

The Land of Milk and Honey

Ethiopia (East Africa)

- One of the only nations in Africa never to be colonised.
- Briefly occupied by the Italians from 1936 to 1941.
- Home to an old species of monkeys called Geladas (middle-left).
- Has rock-hewn monolithic churches like The Church of Saint George (bottom-right).
- Injera (top-left) is a popular cultural dish.

Ghana (West Africa)

- World's second largest producer of cocoa beans.
- Africa's second largest producer of Gold (bottom-right is Gold Coast).
- Origin of the Kente cloth (middle-right).
- Popular dishes include Jollof Rice (top-left) and Kenkey (top-right).
- Home to historical Cape Coast Castle (middle-left) and Memorial Park for Ghana's first president, Kwame Nkrumah (bottom-left).

Kenya (East Africa)

- Famed for its natural scenic landscapes and vast wildlife preserves.
- Native species include: Cape Buffaloes (bottom-left), Leopards (middle-left), Reticulated Giraffes (middle-right), East-African Lions (top-right) and Rhinoceroses (bottom-right).
- The popular Samburu tribe (top-left) is referenced in renowned movies and theatrical productions such as The Lion King.

Morocco (North Africa)

- Only 8 miles from Europe.
- Large producer of fashionable traditional hats (bottom-right) and dresses (top-right).
- Home to the Djellaba (bottom-left) and handmade ceramic bowls (middle-left).
- Known for its culturally rich food markets (middle-right).
- “Tangine aux fruits de mer” translated as Seafood Tangine (top-left) is a popular dish.

Nigeria (West Africa)

- Seventh most populous country in the world.
- Rich in oil and natural resources.
- Popular cultural food include Plantain (bottom-right), Pounded Yam (middle-right) and Ogbono soup (top-left).
- The Oba of Benin (top-right) is a ruler of the powerful Kingdom of Benin/Edo - denoted by their beads (middle-left) used globally in fashion.
- Birthplace of the legendary Fela Kuti and home to 'Afrobeats' music using instruments such as the 'Talking Drum' (bottom-left).

South Africa

- The world's leader in mining and minerals.
- Home to many native animal species such as the Gemsbok (top-middle) and Meerkat (bottom-right).
- Has legendary safari parks home to wildlife like Lions (bottom-left).
- Popular cultural food include Ugali Pap/Maize (top-right), Bunny Chow (top-left) and Biltong (middle-left).

